A CENTURY AFTER WATERLOO.

A century after the battle of Waterloo dawned on a world-war stage again on Belgium soil: a war which threatened to be so far-reaching in its ruin and undreamed-of developments, in the quick misery it has inflicted on innocent millions, that its sweep in the method in its madness—could not have been outlined in the Napoleonic dream of conquest.

Where thousands were engaged for the overthrow of one man—the trampler of the vineyards of Europe—millions are contending now. Then the fate of nations was decided in what was practically the battle of a day—quick, bloody, final in its rebuke to the restless ambition of the First Napoleon. But it has been said that Europe, counting herself liberated, was "still enslaved."

Today marks a hundred years after that world-event, which will appeal throughout the ages to the imagination of the world. The monuments of that battle-ground—the Lion-mound commemorative of "the red rain that made the harvest grow," are not distant from the scenes of War's later ruin: and France, the Republic, is now in a greater life or death struggle than ever was France, the Empire.

War was wonderful then, in the light and strength of the genius of one man; it had its recompenses in the spectacular glories of banners, and plumes, and swords that clashed in open warfare; it was the "rapture of the fight," often on equal terms; but time has worked wonders in its changes—of great armies almost always entrenched; one reaches a battle ground and for the time may not realize that war is going on; yet it is everywhere; it has mined the earth—its earth-bombs; battles in the air—undersea, and in the waters above; it is war where science fights for mastery—the culmination of barbarities under the guise and sanction of Christian "civilization."

It rolls around and above the Prisoner of Saint Helena, in that fighting France he loved so well; from whose shores he looked towards England and dreamed of invasion—which Science is attempting now. He has his imitators in the new day whose battle-thunders shake the world; but none stands out as he stood, in genius supreme—in full relief of glory. Ambition is there, and the will for world-conquest and new achievement in the conduct of war, but the man of many victories—"of thousand thrones," who crowned and uncrowned kings, whose star of destiny died from the night of Waterloo, is solitary still.

His life preached the sermon of Ambition, and the people reckoned with him at last as they will reckon with all the rulers of earth, whose "restless ambition overleaps itself"—who lose the common touch.

STRONGER MONROE DOCTRINE.

It was Senator Santiago Perez Triana, of the great States of Colombia, who brought to the Pan-American financial conference recently held in Washington, the message of "America for the Americans," both with regard to territorial possession and to commercial and financial relations. In a speech in Boston a day or two ago, upon the occasion of the entertainment there of the Pan-American delegates, he further amplified this doctrine, pointing out that to make it most effective, we must be willing to "get into at home what we preach to and demand of foreign powers on other continents."

While the Monroe doctrine has effectively closed the doors against territorial aggression on the part of European or other foreign powers, anywhere upon the American continent, Senator Triana pointed out that it is always the strength and force it should have until the nations of North and South America enter into agreement for its effective operation at home, and against territorial conquest on the part of any one of them toward any of the others.

The United States are the first to recognize the importance of such a declaration. Naturally it should first come from us, since this is the most powerful of all the American countries and the one best able to conduct a war of conquest, should there arise occasion for it. But the United States have no such purpose. We made that clear enough in the war with Spain. Our treatment of Cuba should be a guarantee to every Latin-American country of our good intentions. We have told Mexico that we want nothing whatever from her; that we have no desire even to interfere in her internal affairs, except in the interest of humanity.

The United States, therefore, can well afford to lead in the declaration of a bigger and broader Monroe doctrine, one that shall preserve present territorial status not only against the possible foreign invader, but against the sudden or unwarranted ambition of a neighbor. Such a declaration on the part of all the American republics would not only establish among them a very comfortable feeling of security with regard to possible foreign aggression, but would practically remove the possibility of conflict among themselves and send their internal disputes to arbitration.

If we could at the same time devise a plan which would send the determination of every revolution to the ballot box instead of leaving it often to an apparently interminable battle, we should have built still further upon Senator Triana's proposal.

A union of the American republics for their own protection and defense, whenever it may become necessary, or for the prevention of the too frequently recurrent civil strife, can accomplish anything we want to do. It is not entered into haphazard. But it is a prolific subject for the consideration of the next Pan-American conference. Now that these conferences are to be held annually, according to recent announcements from Washington, it will become a comparatively easy matter to arrive at some basis of agreement to insure the permanence of each established American country as at present constituted.

TWO PROSPERITY SIGNS.

Among the signs of returning prosperity The Fort Worth (Texas) Record notes the statement of the savings banks of the country that the small depositor is putting his money in the bank again, and has stopped withdrawals. The Record says:

The small investor has commenced to buy good stock. The market has been so low for so long that it has been a long time since the price of a lot in the suburbs. All of a sudden the confidence has come back to the people, to the salary and the savings banks. The savings banks are close to the top of the market. They are now buying better of financial and industrial securities. They are now buying better of financial and industrial securities. They are now buying better of financial and industrial securities.

Another prosperity sign to be reckoned with is the splendid crop prospect. The Indianapolis News, commenting on the very light yield at the recent judicial election in Illinois, says it was due to the fact that the farmers were too busy to go to the polls: "It is well enough to take chances on a judge, but with such crops as are coming along this year an agriculturist has to be on the spot."

The pessimist is with us always. He never has the good fortune to discover a gold mine when he seeks a storm to hide from a hurricane; but the business outlook of the country is a rebuke to whatever gloomy forebodings he may entertain. It is a brightening prospect for the workers and builders of the country's prosperity.

"BACK TO THE FARM."

The Boston Globe notes the wonderful growth of the "Back to the Farm" movement, which is attracting an extensive revival of the pursuit of agriculture. It says that the mortgage indebtedness on farms throughout the United States has always been difficult to estimate accurately, but gives these encouraging figures:

The federal census bureau has been making a study of the mortgage indebtedness on farms in the United States. It has found that the mortgage indebtedness on farms in the United States has been increasing steadily for the last few years. It has found that the mortgage indebtedness on farms in the United States has been increasing steadily for the last few years. It has found that the mortgage indebtedness on farms in the United States has been increasing steadily for the last few years.

Another hopeful sign of agricultural prosperity is found in the fact that country boys are not migrating to the cities as fast as formerly. Of this tendency to remain on the farm The Madison (Ind.) Herald says:

It is beginning to dawn on the country boy that when he drops the raising of corn and wheat for a great part of his interest in a commodity that is rapidly increasing in price, he is not really advancing in life on that principle. And the country boy is beginning to realize that he will stay on, too. The farmers are beginning to realize that they are not going to be driven from their homes by the cities in the year 1925 than the store.

The farmers are making everything count now—in every department of farm work—the raising of better breeds of stock, the conservation of all sources of farm supply. They are getting the life out of the land and yet renewing that life for greater productivity. They are getting the life out of the land and yet renewing that life for greater productivity. They are getting the life out of the land and yet renewing that life for greater productivity.

Washington county shipped 150 carloads of strawberries this season. They sold for $125,000. From the Judea region, although there was a heavy frost, a shipment of 150 carloads of berries, which sold for $150,000.

And just to think that the people who raised $125,000 and $150,000 in Washington county and Judea region, might have spent their time sitting on a bench in a place discussing the war in "Europe!"

State by state, it is one voice of progress of the farms, going on to still greater achievement in the higher development of the world-economy soil.

ARCHITECT OUTLINES

EMORY UNIVERSITY
PLANS FOR CAMPUS

Plans for the campus of Emory university, to be situated near Druid Hills, were outlined yesterday afternoon by Dr. Henry Hornbostel, the widely known architect selected recently by a special committee following a banquet by the Emory University founders club in the assembly hall of the Chamber of Commerce building.

Dr. Hornbostel said that Emory university would have for its location one of the most ideal spots in Dixie. In the landscape scheme everything will be done by Dr. Hornbostel to take advantage of the three hills on the tract of land for an effective placement of the buildings.

While beauty of design and arrangement are not material necessities to the establishment of an educational institution, Dr. Hornbostel pointed out that they would be lasting factors which could not be overlooked even in the case of institutions with a limited purse. The type of architecture of the buildings which would be built there in the future, he said, would depend upon the ideas of future generations, but the basis for their growth could be established in these years to be erected in the next several years.

For these reasons the architect believed that the scheme and plan of the plant should have sufficient elasticity to admit of development. However, instead of buildings of the characteristics typical of exposition architecture or of a rambling arrangement, no matter how picturesque, Dr. Hornbostel advised the monumental effects sought in the building of Virginia university, California university and others of recent growth and development.

In drawing the tentative plans Dr. Hornbostel took advantage of the central plateau which is flanked by parallel streams for the larger and chief structures. The symmetrical effect of these would be seen, he said, from the main entrance leading off from the Druid Hills drive and also felt at every turn of the driveway flanking the two streams. Dr. Hornbostel was particularly pleased with the woodlands which made up a large part of the proposed campus and stated that they should only be trimmed or cut for the purpose of driveways and the vista.

The buildings to occupy the central plateau, as at present arranged, are to be occupied by the library, the school of divinity, the law school, the school of arts, the school of design and the school of natural science. In the quadrangular plan the commanding library building shall occupy the central position on the front of the plateau, flanked by the foreground by the schools of design and theology.

The medical college is to be placed in the background and on the higher part of the central plateau. In the rear the main structure of this department will be situated the buildings for the nurses and for the clinics and laboratories. On the left of the plateau are the schools of law, medicine, and the power plant and many other subsidiary buildings whose arrangement would be subject to the development of the university plan.

The Emory Founders' club was organized to assist in the development of the campus. Dr. Hornbostel, for the purpose of assembling men who should be active in the development of the campus, has organized the Emory Founders' club. The club is composed of men who are active in the development of the campus. The club is composed of men who are active in the development of the campus.

"Atlanta will do the large thing," said Dr. Hornbostel, "and it is in this connection, when it realizes the immense advantage of the institution to its growth and development. We have a present part of an endowment and the cost of erection of the necessary structures will have been obtained, for the president will be unable to open them like an umbrella. The money so spent will immediately go back into local industry. When the citizens of Atlanta realize the great sums which will be annually let into local industry by the students to attend the several courses of Emory, they will feel the obligation to assist in the development of the campus."

In emphasizing the argument that the Emory plans allow of elastic growth of the plant, Dr. Hornbostel pointed out that the universities of this country would soon be crowded beyond their capacity. A decade or two ago, he said, the Carnegie School of Technology, California university, Northwestern university, the New York State library, the Carnegie Memorial at Pittsburgh, various city halls of eastern cities and three of the new universities of the Middle West at New York. All of these he had designed after competition with other noted architects.

The chairman of the several committees which will superintend the several divisions of work in connection with the erection of Emory university, were announced by Mr. Arkwright as follows: W. L. Peck, finance committee; Rev. A. M. Hugliett, committee on literature; and E. V. Carter, committee on membership.

Plague-Infected Bats.

(From The New York Times.)

In view of the admitted importance of the rat in the transmission of plague, the study of this disease among rodents has become quite as necessary from the point of view of preventive hygiene as the management of the human case. For this reason, a decade or two ago the investigation of disease among such lowly creatures as rats and mice has become a scientific inquiry, interesting from a purely scientific aspect, but without any direct application to the problems of public health. Modern knowledge has, however, taught the unsuspected significance of work along these lines.

In a recently published report to the local government board of England on the rat plague in East India during the period from July to October, 1911, the magnitude of a single outbreak is shown. In the city of Calcutta, 15,322 rats were examined for plague infection—task itself of no mean proportions. Of the 15,322 rats, 1,000 were found to be plague-infected. Thirty-seven premises were found to be infested with rats. The rats were all within an area previously pronounced to be infected.

An Economic as well as hygienic advantage in the anti-rat crusade is shown by this English investigation," says the Journal of the Royal Society of Medicine.

Rat destruction, which has been maintained by local enterprises for somewhat more than a year, had, in many localities, appreciably diminished the rat population.

IS ENGLISH NAVY

GREAT MENACE

THAN GERMAN ARMY?

General Friedrich von Bernhardt, the famous German author and soldier, says so, and, by special permission of Kaiser Wilhelm, has written an article setting forth this view. This intensely interesting and timely contribution to the literature of the war will be first published Sunday, and will appear in full in The Sunday Constitution.

General Bernhardt, author of "Germany and the Next War," considered the official spokesman for German military affairs, is now in command of a division of cavalry battling with the Russians.

In his latest article, to be published Sunday, General Bernhardt recites the inception and gives the history of German militarism, urges its necessity, and sets forth reasons why the German nation has prospered under that system. He contends that the German army has developed the minds as well as the bodies of the Kaiser's people.

After explaining and defending the German military system, he takes up the English navy, and contends that British navalism is the real foe of all the nations of the world, and the great menace with which all nations must, sooner or later, contend.

Bernhardt's remarkable article will be published in no other Atlanta newspaper. Written by the Kaiser's special permission, and by a general now at the front, it may rightfully be considered Germany's official answer to the many attacks on her militarism.

THE magazine section of The Sunday Constitution will contain other features that will prove of especial interest to those who desire to keep informed as to the progress of the world's greatest war in all its angles.

A page is devoted to Claude Graham-White, the well-known aviator, who four years ago warned his country of the danger of an aerial invasion of London, and whose prophecy has come true in every essential detail.

Accompanying the story of Graham-White's remarkably accurate forecast, is a vivid drawing of the aviator's conception of an aerial raid on London as pictured to the war office four years ago, and as carried out in actuality a few weeks ago.

Still another war feature of more than passing interest is a full page on Victor Emmanuel, the last of the great rulers in the war's caldron, a home-loving monarch, who would rather play with his children than lead an army any day, and who nevertheless is recognized as one of the ablest strategists in Europe. There are some striking pictures of Italy's ruler, the queen and all the children.

Another installment of "Our Country by Our President," a history of the American people, by Woodrow Wilson, will be published Sunday—a page and a half setting forth in the president's clear style some of the most interesting chapters in the history of the American colonies.

The Greatest Comics

Did you meet Charley Chaplin last Sunday? You know how funny he is on the screen. He is just as funny in the comics. "Charley Chaplin's Comic Capers," a full page in four colors every Sunday, is going to be the most popular comic hit a newspaper ever had—and you are depriving the children of a lot of innocent amusement if you do not see to it they are given a chance to see what the comical fellow does in The Constitution every Sunday.

The addition of Chaplin makes The Constitution comic section unquestionably the best published by any newspaper. "Home Wanted by a Baby," a quaint series of exploits for which Clare Dwigins is paid the highest price ever received by a comic artist, and "Hank the Hermit and His Animal Friends," the remarkable creation of Walt McDougall, are other great features of The Constitution's "funnies."

Other Features of Note

FOX TROTTERING TO AID HORSE TROTTERING is the title of the beautiful four-color page which leads off the Sunday magazine section.

IS THERE NEED FOR A PUBLIC DEFENDER? is the title of a full page discussion by Campbell Macculloch, accompanied by photos of those now acting as public defenders, and setting forth what they have done.

A page on SCIENCE AND NEAR-SCIENCE UP-TO-DATE.

A page FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER.

A double page of MOVING PICTURE NEWS AND GOSSIP.

A page devoted to CLUB WOMEN AND PATRIOTIC SOCIETIES.

A page for the TRAVELING SALESMAN.

Another installment of "THE BLACK BOX," the sensational novel by E. Phillips Oppenheim.

THE Sunday Constitution always has the best society section, the best sporting section, the best market page, and carries the full report of The Associated Press, the world's greatest news service, augmented by special correspondence from every corner of the globe.

DENTISTS ARE WELCOMED TO ATLANTA

Georgia Should Have Departments of Dental Science, Says Dr. E. A. Tigner.

After addresses during the morning session of the forty-seventh annual convention of the Georgia Dental Association by Mayor Woodhouse, President E. A. Tigner, Dr. M. D. Huff and Dr. N. A. Tegner, the attending dentists of the large portion of the afternoon of "Partial Artificial Dentures" by Dr. F. E. Roach, one of the most eminent dental specialists of the country.

Dr. Roach's address was heard by 200 dentists of Atlanta and various sections of the state, and his treatment of the subject was generally considered one of the most brilliant of its kind ever delivered before the association. One of the interesting features of the association's program was the stereoscopic views shown during the convention.

During the evening session Dr. Theodore Blum, of Chicago, spoke on "Conductive Anesthesia." The dentists will convene early Friday morning in the convention hall of the Piedmont hotel, where all the programs of the convention are being rendered, to attend the progressive clinics which will continue for the greater part of the day. The hall is to be divided into two amphitheaters, where progressive clinics will be continuously shown. Subjects will be treated by Drs. Blum and Roach, who will conduct the clinics.

The standard colleges of Georgia should have departments of dental science was the earnest plea of Dr. Tigner in his presidential address Thursday morning. He pointed out that the medical colleges and departments in the colleges, and said that the dental profession could only reach the maximum of efficiency and eminence by the department of dental science in the institutions.

The most attractive feature of the convention is the unusually large and complete line of exhibits, arranged by manufacturing firms of dental appliances. The exhibits are housed in the Piedmont hotel, exclusive of the convention hall, which has been leased for this purpose by the association.

ROUGLIN ON TRIAL FOR DEATH OF INFANT

Arraigned on a charge of involuntary manslaughter that grew out of the accidental death of 3-year-old Hugh Murray, Jr., under an operation, Dr. L. C. Rouglin went on trial before Judge Ben Hill yesterday morning. A jury was quickly selected.

BORN TO BE TRIED ON FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Policeman J. P. Born, who while engaged with duty, was killed by a car driven by Chief Beavers yesterday morning, was arraigned in the recorder's court Thursday afternoon before the acting recorder, Councilman Sam N. Freeman.

MERCURY TO KEEP ON ITS UPWARD WAY

The day will be fair and warm, according to the report issued from the weather bureau yesterday afternoon. The mercury is climbing by degrees, although the territory has suffered less from excessive heat this year than at the same time in 1914. Yesterday was fair, despite frequent incursions of the elements to cloud up in prediction of anything from hail to thunder.

CAPITOL GOSSIP

New Legislators Elected. The coming session of the general assembly will have its members who have been elected since the regular election of delegates to this body. One of these is a senator and the other five are representatives.

New counties will have the following representatives: Bacon county, J. H. Carter, of Alma; Chandler county, E. Young, of Young's Bluff; Barrow county, R. L. Carithers, of Winder.

G. L. Pickens has been elected to succeed W. W. Reynolds, deceased, as representative from Charlton county, and W. H. Morris has been elected to succeed R. B. Roberts, deceased, as representative from Crisp county.

Following the announcement in the executive session of the general assembly, W. H. Burwell, of Hancock, and Senator G. H. Owens, of Forsyth, were elected to the presidency of the assembly.

The executive session of the state on Thursday drew a warrant upon the treasurer of the state, who was paid to county schools. The checks will be made out and mailed from the treasurer's office in a day or so.

S. A. L. Wants Changes

The Seaboard Air Line railroad has filed with the state railroad commission a petition asking permission to discontinue trains between Atlanta and Augusta, and to move into quarters which it will provide at Twigg and Calhoun streets. The road maintains that the station at Calhoun is so high that the business of the road is not justified by the expense of the road.

Augusta Station Question Arises

The Georgia and Florida railroad renewed with the state railroad commission its petition for permission to discontinue the train between Atlanta and Augusta, and to move into quarters which it will provide at Twigg and Calhoun streets. The road maintains that the station at Calhoun is so high that the business of the road is not justified by the expense of the road.

Want to Move Newwood Station

A petition from certain citizens and with the intervention of the Georgia Railway and Power company, is pending before the state railroad commission asking the removal of Newwood station on the main line between Atlanta and Augusta, and to move into quarters which it will provide at Twigg and Calhoun streets. The road maintains that the station at Calhoun is so high that the business of the road is not justified by the expense of the road.

"Jitneys" Notice Mailed

The state railroad commission is mailing out notices of the action it has taken in regard to the regulation of "jitney" buses, so that every possible opportunity will be given to the parties interested in the action to comply with the commission's recent decision. The notices, which contain also a set of the tentative rules for "jitneys," are being mailed to the owners of all the principal Georgia cities with the request that the notices be placed in the hands of those who have information on the subject. The tentative rules will be held July 15. Anyone desiring to object to the tentative regulation in person or by mail to the railroad commission.

Sam Burnt the Wind When He Became Brunt of Argument

Little Nigger Didn't Have Much Chance With Two Big White Men—and a Hammer—So He Cleared Out.

"You point those steps, nigger."

"Don't you point those steps, nigger."

"If you don't point those steps, nigger, I'll break your neck."

"If you point those steps, nigger, I'll throw you down into the street."

"Two very stalwart men, Dr. J. H. Vining and Charles Williams, were engaged in this argument over 'Sam,' a diminutive negro, 162 lbs. 1-2, at the street Wednesday afternoon.

That he was "between the devil and the deep blue sea" was very evident to Sam. He was saved from the perils of the argument by the appearance of a third man, who was very much engaged in a lively fight, during which Sam proceeded to leave the neighborhood with all the speed at his command.

The councilman fined Williams $10.75 using profane language, and fined Dr. Vining $25.75 for being in the neighborhood of the assault and battery.

FREEDOM IS GIVEN TO ARTHUR COLYAR; JAILED AS INSANE

Arthur S. Colyar, the raven-haired wanderer, adventurer and co-conspirator in Atlanta's sensational disbarment episode more than a year ago, is now a free man.

He was released from prison in Chattanooga, Tenn., because of insanity. He had been confined there for 11 months, during which time he had been treated by his attorneys, but according to the report of the physician who examined him, he was not sane enough to stand trial.

A Real Silk Sale!

The buyer is back from New York with Desired Styles in New Summer Silks.

Silks Worth at Retail $18,000
Are to Be Sold for $10,500

BECAUSE New York importers and selling agents are winding up their season, they were glad to favor their largest southern customer with their surpluses and overlots.

Here are the Silks you have been asking for at a fraction of their first prices.

$2 Tiedown Taffeta $1.29

IF WE didn't tell you, you would swear this was Pussy Willow Taffeta, because it duplicates pussy willow almost to a thread. Looks the same in weight, quality, finish and texture. Black, white and every desired street and pastel shade. 40 inches.

$1.50 Marquettes 89c Crepe de Chines 89c
—Inasmuch as net dresses are in high vogue, these sheer silk marquettes should sell in a jiffy. Bordered with self-colored satin stripes. Pink, white, mait, lavender, rose.
—A plump weight all-silk crepe de chine in a rather complete line of colors. No black or white. 40 inches.

$1.50 Wash Silk Shirts 89c
IN stripes and solid colors, hence not alone for shirts. The soft pastel shades in solid colors are equally desirable for summer frocks, petticoats, lingerie and underwear. 32 inches wide.

$3.50 Georgette Crepe $1.29

GOSSAMER fabrics of quently beauty. Rich floral patterns; gorgeous colorings in stripes and plaids; captivating scroll and geometrical designs. On white and colored Georgette crepes. 40 inches.

$1 Black Silks at 59c $1 Fancy Silks at 63c
—Palette de Sole—a solid black silk of the messaline family. Deep, firm body and rich, lustrous finish. Yard wide.
—A miscellaneous lot of silks, including Roman and fancy stripe messalines; solid color gabardines, serges, etc. 26 to 36 inches.

$3 Swiss Chiffon Taffetas $1.39

THE world is Fashion mad over taffeta; it goes hand in hand with the new modes. What luck, then, to secure this imported chiffon taffeta in black, white and almost every desired shade at this less-than-half price. 40 inches wide.

$1.50 & $2 Chiffons 79c

ALL-SILK chiffons in a wonderful range of floral and stripe effects on white and colored grounds. Some of the patterns are moiré.

$1 Crepe de Chines 69c $1 Silk Failles 63c
—Flesh color and pink crepe de chine for waists, corset covers, etc. 36 inches.
—This popular silk in about every desired color and shade except black, white and navy blue. 36 inches.

$3 Olga Silk Crepe $1.89

ALMOST as crinkled as crepe de chine, but heavier and much richer. Has the weight and finish of a charmeuse—ideal for any occasion that requires a handsome black silk. Extremely wide, 46 inches.

$1.50 Fancy Silks at 89c

CLOSE to half price for such desired silks as black-and-white and blue-and-white shepherd checks; pencil stripes and colorful Tartan plaids. 36 inches.

$1.50 Silk & Wool Poplin 89c 59c Shedwater Chiffons 29c
—The suppleness and style of silk joined to the strength and service of wool. It's a happy union, resulting in a superb fabric for all manner of street dresses. Black and leading colors. 40 inches.
—The lowest price we have ever known on solid color chiffons of this quality. Twenty-eight full pieces, embracing black, white and almost every desired shade.

85c to $1 Silk Foulards 59c

THE conditions of the sale prevent us from mentioning the manufacturer's name. It's the best-known foulard in America, however, and rain proof. Staple navy blues and blacks in all size dots from pin to coin.

$1.50 Pink Corsets $1

A comfortable and slightly corset, well made of summer batiste

IT HAS guaranteed non-rustable boning, and two elastic gussets inset at front to insure comfort and wear. Neatly trimmed with embroidery. It's the best looking corset we have seen this summer at $1. Here, also is a special

19c Sale That Includes:

- Broken sizes in DeBevoise brassieres 19c.
- $1 soiled corsets in small sizes 19c.

LEO FRANK MAY KNOW HIS FATE BY SUNDAY

Thought Gov. Slaton Will Announce His Decision on Appeal Saturday.

Governor Slaton's decision in the Frank case appeal for commutation will not be announced before Saturday. He has been making an exhaustive study of the Frank records, and worked in his library at the country home on Peachtree road until about midnight this morning.

It will not be until 1 p.m. familiar with every essential detail of the case, he stated Wednesday, "that I will reach a decision."

The date of the proposed execution is next Tuesday, June 22.
